

Turkey under European observation

Türkiye Avrupa'dan uzaklaştırılmaz

Over the last two years Turkey has experienced some hectic periods in terms of both domestic and foreign politics. Operation "Euphrates Shield" that launched in Syria, the developments in the fight against the PKK, the July 15 coup attempt and the subsequent state of emergency all caused significant changes people's views of Turkey, both from the perspective of those within it and those in other countries. While progress was made in relations with Russia, American support for PYD in Syria had a relatively negative impact on relations with the US, and all these developments dragged EU relations into abeyance.

Independent journal and think tank Eurasia Review published Harun Yahya's article "Turkey under European observation" on May 9th 2017. You may read the article at the below links.
