Africa cries for help

We have seen the terrible pictures from Somalia upon the internal conflicts and a major drought in the country in 2011. People starved to death; the international community had not taken strong steps for that and the entire world watched the quarter of a million people, starving to death, from a distance.

The same circle is now loath to see these terrible pictures in Somalia once again, as the region has been hit by the drought harder than ever. The United Nations reported that due to the longstanding drought in Somalia, 305,000 children are being malnourished and 58,300 children face death. According to the UN, nearly 40 percent of the population of 4,7 million people are in need of humanitarian aid, which has influenced the neighboring countries in the Horn of Africa. In Ethiopia, more than 10 million people need food assistance because of the failure of the rains while the drought-affected areas in Zimbabwe have been declared as a state of disaster.

While one million people in Somalia have been facing such kind of threat, the areas facing the very real threat in the country are the autonomous regions of Puntland and Somaliland. The drought in Somaliland has perished thousands of undernourished animals. The people, depending on animal husbandry, which is the only means of livelihood for them, are now unable to find anything to eat. The international aid organization Islamic Relief, stated that some of the women on the verge of starving have been attacked by hyenas.

A non-profit aid organization, Save the Children, warns that malnutrition rates – especially for children – are alarming and likely to increase. The drought in the region is the worst of all time according to the people who have been suffering from it.

Uluslararası toplumun ilgi odağı olan konular her gün basın manşetlerinde yerlerini alırken, pek de gündemimize gelmeyen büyük bir trajedi yaşanıyor dünyada. Tanıdığımız, unutulmamış ve hiç bitmemiş bir trajedi bu; Afrika ve açlık trajedisi.

2011'deki iç çatışmalar ve büyük kuraklık sonrasında şahit olmuştuk Somali'deki korkunç manzaralara. İnsanlar açlıktan ölüyor, uluslararası toplum bir türlü harekete geçemiyor ve çeyrek milyon insanın açlıktan can verişini bütün dünya sadece izliyordu. Elbette bu soruna çare bulmaya çalışanlar oldu; ama çabaları yeterli olmadı. Dünyayı hareket geçirmeye güçleri yetmedi.
